EXHIBIT A

DESCRIPTION OF MATTERS ON WHICH EXAMINATION IS REQUESTED

DEFINITIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS

1. "AMD" means Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. and AMD International Sales & Services, Inc., including but not limited to their subsidiaries, joint ventures, past and present officers, directors, agents, attorneys, employees, consultants, or other persons acting on either of their behalf.
2. "Discounts" mean all rebates, price adjustments, bonuses, incentives, NRE, MDF, or any other payment or credit that AMD offered to a customer in conjunction with an offer or sale of x86 microprocessors. Discounts include those price adjustments that are designated as applying to individual processor types (SKUs) and separately the discounts intended to apply to any/all processor purchases.
3. "Large volume customers" means AMD's top twenty (20) x86 microprocessor customers by volume for each calendar year from 2000 to the present.
4. "Customer or Customers" means any other customer that buys x86 microprocessors from AMD and is not captured in definition 3 above, for the period January 1, 2000 to the present.
5. "Contracts" means any agreements between AMD and its large volume customers or other customers relating to the purchase or sale of x86 microprocessors.
6. "Offers for the sale of x86 microprocessors" means any communication from AMD to its large volume customers or other customers, or vice versa, setting forth a price, discount, or any other proposed term or condition, for the sale of any quantity of x86 microprocessors.

7. This Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice seeks a corporate witness to testify on the topics set out below for the period January 1, 2000 to the present.

SUBJECT MATTER

1. For each x86 microprocessor that you have sold to a large volume customer, the existence and location of any database, or documents referring or relating to: (1) the identity of the customer; (2) the quantity or volume purchased; (3) the list, customer authorized, standard or other similar price in effect at the time of the transaction; (4) the date; (5) the transaction or other identifying number; (6) the microprocessor brand, SKU or equivalent measure, model and speed; (7) any rebate discount, or price adjustment (in whatever form) and the reasons that such pricing was provided; (8) any volume conditions, requirements or restrictions; (9) all other terms and conditions for sale; and (10) the volume actually purchased and price actually paid.

2. AMD's corporate policies and practices concerning the documentation of the terms and conditions of sale of x86 microprocessors, including data collection and storage, contracts, pricing and discount offers, files, or any other relevant manner in which sales information is maintained.

3. The manner in which data and documents concerning offers, prices, discounts, volumes, billings, and terms and conditions for the sale of x86 microprocessors are collected, retained, and indexed, and communicated to large volume customers or other customers, and the types of systems that AMD utilizes or has utilized to manage this information and/or data.

4. AMD corporate policies and practices concerning the use, retention, and indexing of contracts setting forth the terms and conditions of sale of x86 microprocessors.

5. The existence and location of contracts between AMD and its large volume customers setting forth the terms and conditions of sale of x86 microprocessors.

6. AMD corporate policies and practices concerning the use, retention, and indexing of offers for the sale of x86 microprocessors to its large volume customers, including all prices, discounts, or any other term and condition associated with those offers.

7. The existence and location of communications concerning the sale of x86 microprocessors to large volume customers, including but not limited to PowerPoint presentations, formal offer sheets, contracts, letters, memos, email communications, or databases, and all prices, discounts, or any other terms and conditions associated with any of the foregoing.

8. AMD corporate policies and practices concerning the use, retention, and indexing of files, including all correspondence, negotiating history, or any other relevant customer-specific information, associated with each large volume customer.

9. The existence and location of files, including all correspondence, negotiating history, or any other relevant customer-specific information, associated with each large volume customer.
